WEDDINGS .- A New Otleans paper says: "A beautiful home wedding took place on Tuesday at the residence of Mr. James Mc. Cracken, corner of Third and Collseum. It was the occasion of the marriage of his daughter, Miss Mertie McCracken, to Mr. Joseph H. Saward, of Petersburg, Ve. The house was elaborately decorated with palms, feres and an endiess profusion of flowers.
As the sofe notes of Mczyrt's love march fell on the air the bride entered the parlor lead ington. ing on her fathet's orm. She was a dreem of etherial loveliness. Her gown was fashioned of white armure silk trimmed with duchess lace. R.v. C. Trawick, of the Ci-nal Street Presbyterian Church, performed the ceremony with much feeling and impressiveness. Miss Katle McCracken, the bride's sister, seted as maid of honor. She siveness. Miss Katle McCracken, the bride's eleter, sorted as maid of honor. She was growned in French slik muslin over a satin slip. A bridal reception was held afo'r the ceremony, which was attended by the immediate friends of the family. After the reception an elegant is mily dinner was served. At 7 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Beward departed on their bridal tenr through Florids. The bride is one of the loveliset and most accomplished young ladies of this city. Fortunate indeed is the groom who can claim such a lawel of time womanhood for wife. The jury in the case of Annie Cervo, in today, returned a verdict of acquittal. The 5 minutes after retiring, as E zibeth, N. J., spectators applauded the prisoner and her husband, Michael Cervo, who was awaiting trial as an accessory. Both were discharged from oustody. Frank Lombardo, who was stabbed by Annie, was found dead on Sunday morning, Nov. 1st last. The prisoner admitted the stabbing and in justification swore that it was in defense of her honor that she committed the crime. The State's principal witness swore that he saw Lombardo and Annie struggling together and saw her strike a blow.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

New York, Jan. 23.-The stock market was active at the opening this morning, and first prices showed but irregular changes from last night's figures and the subsequent dealings in the general list were marked by small fluctuations only, the early weakness being followed by a recovery. At 11 o'clock the market was quiet and rather unsettled with most stocks at insignificant changes from opening prices.
